The Constitution of the Empire of Enkya

Preamble

The Empire of Enkya hereby establishes this Constitution with the purpose of ensuring internal stability and prosperity and to uphold the Rights of every Citizen of the Empire.

Article I

Section I – On the Government

There shall be an Imperial Government, the body which shall be known as the Ministry of Enkya, whose purpose is to uphold the Rights of the Citizens of Enkya; to enforce laws set forth by this Constitution, which shall be the highest Law of the Empire; and to stimulate National Development through the creation and administration of realistic roleplay which shall coincide with the Lore of Enkya.

Section II – On the Definitions used thereof

In clear terms, the definitions of Empire, Citizen and Vassal shall be inscribed here:
Empire: The Empire of Enkya, the entity this Constitution is established by.
Citizen: Any member of the Empire of Enkya that has proclaimed loyalty to Enkya and the Emperor and the Empress.
Vassal: A Nation that has proclaimed loyalty to the Enkya and whose ruler has proclaimed loyalty to the Emperor and the Empress.
Banishment: Exile from the Empire, being the removal from the PM and forbiddance of any invitation to the PM.

Article II

Section I – On the Rights of the Citizens

All Citizens within the Empire of Enkya shall reserve these unalienable Rights.

Thesis I: All citizens of the Empire of Enkya shall have the right to freedom of speech, freedom of expression, and freedom of assembly, save for the democratically determined exceptions stated in Article II Section III Thesis VIII of the Constitution of the Empire of Enkya.
Thesis II: All citizens of the Empire of Enkya shall have the right to freedom of religion, and the government shall not discriminate on the basis of religious beliefs.
